

The Australian Women's Register

Entry type: Person
Entry ID: AWE0935

Miller, Mary

(1920 - 2003)

Born 1 January, 1920, Yorketown South Australia Australia

Died 31 December, 2003

Occupation Child welfare advocate, Labour movement activist, Teacher, Welfare activist

Summary

Mary Miller was born in Yorketown, South Australia and spent her childhood on Yorke Peninsula. Her work in munitions factories during World War II led to her involvement as an organiser in the iron workers' union and a life-long commitment to the labour movement. In the mid-1950s she qualified as a primary school teacher and became active in child welfare and Aboriginal education.

Published resources

Resource

Trove, National Library of Australia, 2009

Archival resources

State Library of South Australia

[Interview with Mary Miller \[sound recording\]](#) Interviewer: Margaret Allen

[Address by Mary Miller \[sound recording\]](#)

[Interviews concerning Women's Work and the Second World War : SUMMARY RECORD \[sound recording\]](#) Interviewer: Margaret Allen

Author Details

Anne Heywood and Robin Secomb

Created 22 April 2004

Last modified 14 August 2015