

The Australian Women's Register

Entry type: Person
Entry ID: AWE1524

Cohen, Anne Margaret

(1941 -)

Born 2 January, 1941

Occupation Businesswoman, Parliamentarian

Summary

Anne Margaret Cohen, a Liberal Party candidate, was elected to the New South Wales Legislative Assembly for Minchinbury in 1988 and to the Badgerys Creek Assembly seat in 1991. She failed to gain re-election to the latter in 1995.

Details

Anne Cohen had been a teacher, public servant, editor and the owner/operator of a small business before she ran for parliament.

Anne Cohen was first elected to the New South Wales Legislative Council for the seat of Minchinbury in March 1988 and had a remarkably swift rise to the Ministries of Nick Greiner, and later John Fahey. She was Chief Secretary, Minister for Administrative Services 1991-95, and Minister assisting the Premier on Status of Women 1992-3. When the redistribution abolished her seat, she ran for and won the seat of Badgerys Creek 1991-95. She was Chairman of the Parliamentary Road Safety Committee Staysafe in 1989.

She is married to Richard and they have two children.

Published resources

Resource

Trove, National Library of Australia, 2009

Created 12 December 2005

Last modified 16 September 2013