Wilkinson, Marian

(1954 -)

Born 1 January, 1954

Occupation Journalist, Print journalist, Television Journalist

Summary

Marian Wilkinson won a Walkley Award in 1989 for Best TV Current Affairs reporting, while working for the program Four Corners. In True Believers she interviewed four Liberal Party MPs after the Andrew Peacock leadership 'coup' that removed John Howard from the Liberal leadership. The judges commented in 1989 that she provided a 'new angle on the story...it was well presented...with unbelievable interviews. The impact of this programme is still being felt on the national political scene'.

Details

Marian Wilkinson was brought up in Brisbane and graduated from Queensland University. She helped set up Brisbane's first alternative FM Radio Station, 4ZZZ-FM, and helped run its first newsroom. She was hired by The National Times in Sydney covering politics and organised crime before becoming the paper's Washington Correspondent. On her return to Australia she joined ABC Television's Four Corners as a reporter and later became the program's executive producer. Since then she has worked at The Australian and the Sydney Morning Herald in reporting and editing roles. In 2002 she was appointed Washington Correspondent for the Sydney Morning Herald and the Melbourne Age and reported the 2004 presidential campaign. She returned to the Herald in Sydney as a senior reporter covering national security and Cole inquiry into the Oil for Food scandal.

She is the author of several books on Australian politics including: The Fixer, the Unauthorised Biography of Graham Richardson and Dark Victory with David Marr. She has received numerous awards for her journalism including a Walkley and a Logie.
